BY DAY he is a doting dad, but by night he dons a white jumpsuit and sideburns to transform into the King.

Oakleigh South's Damian Mullin recently won the Australian Ultimate Elvis Tribute Artist in Surfers Paradise, and will travel to Memphis to represent Australia at Elvis Week 2012 in August.

The former salesman said he grew bored with the nine-to-five grind and decided to tap into his creative side.

"I signed up to do singing telegrams," he said.

"Before that my only singing experience was in the shower, but slowly I improved and then it was just a matter of homing in on the Elvis look."

When the bookings started to flow, he was forced to choose between his day job and his night life as the King.

"It was a bit scary to start with, but I love it," he said.

Mullin has since performed on cruise ships and even released an album.

And he has no plans of slowing down, with Elvis shows as popular as ever.
